Bonito & False Albacore From Shore

featuring

Chris Parisi

This is Chris Parisi's second appearance at RISAA and he's thrilled to be discussing his favorite of topics... chasing false albacore and bonito from shore!

Chris has been involved in the recreational fishing industry for over a decade. A former partner at Bad Fish Outfitters, one of Cape Cod's most fondly remembered tackle shops, this is where Chris developed the "albie flu."

Guiding clients to their first funny fish was a passion for Chris, one which only grew at his time with On The Water media group.

From there Chris went on to manage Cape Cod's finest fly shop, Black Eel Outfitters and his addiction became one of a challenge - landing these speedsters with the long rod.

After Black Eel, Chris became the New England sales representative for Tsunami Fishing Tackle and has been there the last 4 years.

Equally at home on his Parker center console, or on the breachways of Rhode Island, Chris still enjoys taking anglers out for the heart pumping experience of chasing these visitors from the south. Chris will be discussing tackle, tactics, and planning a trip to put the odds in your favor.

He will also have a display of "whats in his bag" so you can see exactly what he uses.
