Fisheries and Marine Sciences Scholarships Awarded

The Rhode Island Saltwater Anglers Foundation provides up to four $500 Scholarships each year.

The Fisheries and Marine Sciences Award is awarded to any Rhode Island resident high school senior, who will attend either the University of Rhode Island (URI) or Roger Williams University (RWU), in a fisheries or marine sciences program, within one year.

Also, two $500 scholarships are provided for "Continuing Education" to college freshmen going into their sophomore year in a marine field, attending either RWU or URI. One is awarded to each University.

These awards were presented at the July 31 RISAA meeting.

Jesse D. Mandeville is a graduate of Woonsocket High School and will be studying Marine Biology at URI in the Fall.

Kasey R. Moorehead is a graduate of Toll Gate High School and will be studying Marine Biology at URI in the Fall.

Ryan Bowley received our Fisheries & Marine Sciences Scholarship last year, and has completed his freshman year at URI in their Aquaculture and Fisheries program, and is now entering his sophomore year.
