TARGETING TENS

Refining The Hunt For Doormat Fluke

featuring

Charley Soares

Charley has been a field editor for The Fisherman for 40 years and he's a feature writer for On The Water. In addition, he has been writing a Sunday outdoor newspaper column since 1980.

He is a well-known author having written several books including "Walking on Water", "Stemming The Tide", "Scratching The Surface" and "The Tube and Worm Guide Book"

Charley has been one of the most sought-after seminar speakers on the East Coast.

Charley's program will provide an overview of the fluke fishery the bait, tackle and methods, as well as prime locations for hunting jumbo summer flounder.

The discussion will also delve into the mental aspect of the successful big fish anglers who are willing to pass on good numbers of legal fluke to fish the more difficult areas where the larger fluke feed.

When discussing his plans for this seminar he said, "I'm looking forward to spending an evening with my friends from RISAA."
