Four Seasons of Kayak Fishing

featuring

Todd Corayer

“Four Seasons of Kayak Fishing” will present recommendations for properly rigging a kayak before setting your feet on the water, safety and rods/reels/flyes/lures/electronics with some gear that’s just fun just to have.

Starting with summer, Todd will help you go fishing along the coast and estuaries for our most loved species, including stripers, bluefish, tautog and black sea bass then fish for holdover stripers and white perch, straight through winter, which is when he typically catches the most fish, before transitioning to a very welcomed Spring.

Todd Corayer is a South County freelance writer and fisherman who is profoundly fortunate to meet, fish with and share tips and stories from some of New England’s best outdoorsmen and women through his Fish Wrap newspaper, TV, radio and podcast reports.

He’s fished all over from here to there and won a handful of writing and photography awards, all the while learning from the best of the best. His work has appeared in On The Water Magazine, The Fisherman, The Bay Magazine, So Rhode Island, Sporting Classics, Coastal Angler, The Double Gun Journal, NY Lifestyles, The Island Crier, and very often in the wonderful RISAA News Magazine.
