Get Your Shell On!

Catch and Cook Blue Crabs

Phil Duckett

Phil Duckett started crabbing in 1965 as a 10 year old in Norfolk, VA. Later he moved up to Annapolis, MD and spent a lot of time on the Severn River and Chesapeake Bay.

Over the last few years, Phil has been applying techniques from his youth, and some others gleaned from a variety of sources, in local waters with the help of RISSA members Mark Pachico and Charlie Soares.

"We'll be covering a little biology before getting into techniques such as the Scoop and Dip perfected by Mark Pachico," said Phil. "We'll also cover trot lines, crab pots, chicken on a string and a few tips on finding soft shell crabs."

Additionally, Phil will cover the crabbing regulations in RI (and adjacent MA and CT) before wrapping-up with some cooking and eating tips followed by questions and answers.

About Phil: As a Navy submariner dependent, Phil has lived in some of the fishiest locals around - Hawaii, San Diego, Norfolk, Annapolis, and Florida - before moving to East Lyme, CT then Portsmouth, RI. Acquiring a taste, and more importantly, the love of the hunt for oysters and crabs on the Chesapeake Bay, it is only natural to pursue those past times locally with help from team members of RISSA and AIST.
