Bonito & False Albacore

featuring

Capt. Eric Thomas
Teezer 77 Guide Service
Newport, RI

The Seminar

During this seminar Captain Eric will discuss fishing for albies (false albacore) and bones (bonito), by fly fishing and light tackle, in and around Newport, Narragansett Bay and the Sakonnet River.

About Capt. Eric Thomas

Eric began his fishing career walking the shores of Aquidneck Island fishing for winter flounder, when you could catch them. Those experiences began his love of the ocean and fishing in general. When the saltwater fishing slowed in the early 80's he switched his focus to fishing freshwater ponds close to home.

About 35 years ago, he started fly fishing in those local ponds for largemouth bass and sunfish. He "graduated" to saltwater fly fishing about 5 years later. This was when he was reintroduced to saltwater fishing. By this time, the striped bass was on its way to recovery.

Eric has been a charter captain for the past 25 years. His business has changed with the times and he does more light tackle spin than fly fishing with clients, but his first love will always be fly fishing.

He has worked for, taught for, and tied flies commercially for the Saltwater Edge, and he has tied flies for the book, "Saltwater Flies of the Northeast".

Eric currently works at Crafty One Customs and is on the pro staff of Shimano, YoZuri, PowerPro, Humminbird, and Minn Kota. He has done many seminars for local fishing and fly fishing clubs.

His website is www.teezer77.com, he is on Facebook and Instagram. He can be reached at 401-524-7239.
