A bad day fishing is still better than a good day at work!

CIRCLE HOOKS (from page 26)

This is very similar to the rate used in the stock assessment (9%) and consistent with other studies on striped bass release mortality rates, but researchers want to tag more fish before they are confident in these results. It's too early to determine whether circle hooks have a lower mortality rate.

This summer, researchers are on the water tagging more striped bass to increase the sample size of this study.

In the long-term, the MA DMF team plans to collaborate with state scientists in Long Island Sound and Chesapeake Bay to look at release mortality rates in other regions, as well as for other seasons and other hook types including artificial lures.

The Commission is following this research closely to make sure the best available science is used in the assessment and management of striped bass.
