YEARLONG TOURNAMENT STILL RUNNING UNTIL DECEMBER 15

The Special Tournament season may have ended, but the Yearlong Tournament is still going on and runs through December 15. Many species, including cod, black sea bass and tautog are still plentiful.

The black sea bass season in Rhode Island runs to December 31.

While it's not the same every year, the past few years have seen many migrating schools of quality striped bass passing very close to our shore well into December.

Be sure to check the current Yearlong Tournament standings online at:

https://risaa.org/tournaments/2020_yearlong.html

You will see that there are still many empty spaces waiting for your name!

TOURNAMENTS COMMITTEE ANNUAL MEETING

The Tournaments Committee will have its Annual Meeting on November 23. This will be the time when we plan for the 2021 tournament season and set up the Special Tournaments.

Rule changes will also be discussed along with a few issues that came up during the 2020 season.

Many members have volunteered their thoughts during the past season, and they committee will discuss them.

JOIN THE TOURNAMENTS COMMITTEE!

All RISAA members are welcome to join the committee. This is a great way to get involved in YOUR club. We usually meet once each Fall and conduct any other business during the year by email.

If you're interested, please send an email to volpe@risaa.org for more information.

Rhode Island Saltwater Anglers Association's

Angling Hall of Fame

NEW RECORD SCUP!

Congratulations to member NICK SANNICANDRO who caught this scup from SHORE on June 20. The fish weighed 2.79 lbs which is a new Hall of Fame fish, beating the previous shore-caught scup that was 2.60 lbs, caught by Charles Underhill in 2012. Nick caught the fish at the Weekapaug Breachway using salted clam necks for bait.
